

What to ask the dealer when purchasing a Diamond to get the best value out of your money.

First and most important is to ask for the diamond size, usually when purchasing online pictures can be a little bit confusing. so asking for the size of the diamond will have a big effect on the diamond price. Of course the bigger the diamond the costly is gets.

Second to the size comes the color. diamonds are graded also by their color, the colors variation from d to k, the color will be the wait and most expensive When selecting D color while purchasing a daimond going down to K color should be less expensive diamonds. And it will show a little bit off yellow color to it

The third Parameter you should take Into consideration Is the impurity of the diamond.

Diamonds often has Eternal impurities which are not always visible to the naked eye.

When a diamond has no impurities(flawless diamond) That's the highest level of Value

Impurity will be graded as:

IF = Internally Flawless

Vvs1

Vv2

Vs1

Vs2

Si1

Si2 = inclusions are visible to the naked eye

I1

I2 = big internal inclusions

Last but not least, the "make" of the Diamond (how it's being polished) has also effect on the price,

the highest make you can get for your Diamond is graded buy: "excellent make" and this grading also goes down with the price when you can purchase the same Diamond With a poor make at a lower price

So, here are the make gradings:

Excellent (most expensive)

Very good

Good

Poor

Fair (less expensiv)

Anyway always when purchasing the Diamond ask for the diamond certification that will show all the parameters we have mentioned.

A good reliable certification Institute is the GIA which stand for Gemology Institute of America

Ok, new you have all the information the seller have, hope this was helpful and increases your money value on your next perches .
